

Sascha Smith, DPT, COMT, OCS

Sascha received her Doctorate of Physical Therapy at Angelo State University in San Angelo, Texas. She graduated with her Bachelor's degree in Exercise Science, and minor in Spanish from Pacific University in Forest Grove, Oregon. She spent her first year after graduation working as a traveling physical therapist. She is passionate about general orthopedic therapy and loves working with people to get them back to their full activity levels. Since joining Darby PT she has earned a certification from the North American Institute of Manual therapy as a Certified Orthopedic Musculoskeletal Therapist as well as earning her board certification through American Physical Therapy Association as an Orthopedic Clinical Specialist.

Born and raised in the Bozeman area, Sascha has moved all around the country since leaving for college but is very happy to have followed her roots back to Montana. She takes advantage of all the time she can spend outside camping, hiking or just playing around the garden with her husband and dogs.

We relieve pain, restore function and renew hope!